NYLON: Beyond money – how development is delivering social value in London and New York

Friday 1 November, 12:30-14:30

International Dialogue

The metric used to measure the value of development is often distilled down to money, yet more and more developers are starting to assess their value in a different way – addressing the “triple bottom line” of environmental, social and economic sustainability. London and New York will come together around these pressing questions, sharing examples and discussing current challenges.

Supported by: Mayor of London

Programme Champions: Bates Smart, KPF, London & Partners, White Arkitekter

Programme Supporters: VU.CITY

PROGRAMME

The Urban Bodies exhibition is a documentation of the imaginative, immersive performance by Willi Dorner exploring the relationship between bodies and urban spaces. Inspired by the exhibition, join us for presentations and a panel discussion exploring the links between architecture and performance.

How does performance impact upon contemporary spaces and more historic environments? What effect can performance have on the lives of city workers and citizens? How can architecture be perceived through the body and how can performance lead us to a better understanding of the public spaces we are using every day?
